

ACADEMIC CURRICULUM VITAE

October, 2010

Michael L. Curry
Management Information Systems
College of Business, Oregon State University

PUBLISHED RESEARCH

- Byron Marshall, Michael Curry, Rene Reitsma. (2010) "Does COBIT Improve IT Solutions?", American Accounting Association Conference, IS Section.
- Michael Curry, Jeff Hobbs, Ron Toub, Sarah Douglas (1996) "Will Using a Head Mounted Display Affect Pointing on Wearable Computers?" University of Oregon Computer and Information Science Department Wearable Research Laboratory Technical Paper.
- Michael Curry and Rick Wallace (1993) "Extending Internet Services over Military Communications", Army Communicator Magazine, U.S. Army Signal Corps.

INSTRUCTIONAL EXPERIENCE

Instructor: College of Business, Oregon State University (2008-Present)

- Business Process Management: emphasizes Business Process Reengineering with a synthesis of operations management and MIS concepts including ERP. A core course for college of Business, with over 350+ students annually.
- Business Information Systems: prepares students to manage and contribute to the MIS systems they will encounter in their professional careers and equip them with skills that remain relevant for many years. Acted as course coordinator with four instructors and over 350+ students annually.
- Business Application Development: Intro to business programming with C# and Microsoft .NET. Course covers introductory concepts in programming and prepares students for subsequent programming classes.

Instructor: Computer Science, Oregon State University (2000-2003)

- Courses taught: Software Engineering, Networking, UNIX System Administration, .NET Programming, Computing Theory and Computer Ethics

PRESENTATIONS

- Curry, M. L., Natural Areas Association 2009 Conference, Natural Areas Association, Vancouver, WA. Lightening In a Bottle: Aligning Technology with Natural Area Goals and Strategy. Academic, published elsewhere, Invited. (August 14, 2009).
- Curry, M. L., Monthly IMC PDX Meeting, Institute of Management Consultants, Portland, OR. Internet Marketing: How to Use SEO and Social Networking to Reach Clients. Non-Academic, Invited. (April 14, 2009).
- Curry, M. L., CONFAB: the Next Generation Consultant, Institute of Management Consultants, Reno, NV. eConsulting to improve the client's bottom line. Non-Academic, Invited. (November 14, 2007).

AWARDS

- Outstanding Dedication to OSU MIS Students, Students of OSU MIS, Service, University. (June 6, 2009).
- Student award for service to the MIS club during 2009-2010 academic year in recognition for SharePoint training classes, presentation on Demystifying a Career in MIS and participation in club meetings and events (June 2010).

GRANTS

- Curry, M. L. (Principal), Grant. L.L. Stewart Faculty Development Award. Center for Teaching and Learning, Oregon State University, $2200, Funded. (January 18, 2010 - February 1, 2010).

EDUCATION

Masters of Science, Computer & Information Science, University of Oregon (1996)

Bachelor of Science, Computer Science, US Military Academy, West Point, NY (1986)

PhD, Information Systems, Manchester Business School (in progress) Expected completion date: 2014

LANGUAGES

Spanish

- Listening: C2, Speaking: C1, Reading: B1, Written: B1

German

- Listening: C1, Speaking: B2, Reading: B1, Written: A2

PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

- Institute of Management Consultants
- Association of Computing Machines
- Association for Information Systems
- Microsoft Certified Independent Software Vender